

This September, Art League Gallery will host Island Treasures, an exhibit of original paintings by Hilton Head native Addison Palmer. Palmer's award-winning work focuses mainly on landscapes and animals—both wild and domestic—and largely features the beauty of the Lowcountry. His style ranges from clean-lined depictions in bold colors to serene landscapes and skies using a minimal color palette.

"Island Treasures speaks for itself. Growing up on Hilton Head Island, I was fortunate to both see and feel the 'treasures' of the island and the surrounding areas. Since the age of thirteen, I have captured the beauty of Hilton Head with my original paintings. Today, my paintings are in homes and businesses around the world. People are able to enjoy the beauty of Hilton Head every day through my paintings, even though they might live far away," says Palmer.

Addison Palmer's Island Treasures

Written by Editor

Tuesday, 20 August 2019 08:11

[illegible]