

Two years ago, Beaufort readers were introduced to Lowcountry Burn and its protagonist Nick Falco. As the story began, Nick learned he'd inherited a great deal of money from his grandmother, along with her house on beautiful Fripp Island, where he'd dreamed of living since he was a boy. But Nick's new dream life suddenly took a turn for the nightmarish when he discovered that two strange men from New York were following him and his new girlfriend had a maniac for an ex-boyfriend. Throw in a serial killer wreaking havoc throughout Beaufort County, and you had the makings of a terrific mystery.

Now, Lowcountry Burn author Gary Yeagle is back with a sequel, starring none other than Nick Falco. In Delayed Exposure, Nick faces a new mystery on Fripp. It's been 27 years since the fateful night when two Beaufort High School students were killed on the secluded beach there. After almost three decades, the case remains unsolved . . . until, by a twist of fate, Nick and Shelby Lee Pickett discover devastating evidence that could blow the cold case out of the water.

With Frigg Island Mystery Writer Returns, the author of the Frigg Island Mystery Series, Gary Yeagle, returns with a new mystery novel, Lowcountry Burn, a Nick Falco mystery. The book is available on Amazon, BarnesandNoble.com, and other online retailers.
