

A joint show featuring the works of fiber artist Kim Keats and fine-art photographer Gary Geboy is as natural as, well, nature. Both are celebrated artists in their genres and they are avid collectors of each others' work. The show will be both collaboration and continuum – on one end, Kim, constructing works of art from natural elements; and on the other end, Gary, deconstructing nature into elemental shapes, tone and texture.

Kim harvests tree bark to create vessels and forms, then uses basketry interlacing to add contrast through found objects like twigs and bones. Her pieces often follow the plight of trees and are architectonic and totemic. She calls her work “salvaging” nature, never savaging.

Geboy calls his scavenging and simplifying. He too collects

Organics: the Art of Nature

Written by Editor

Wednesday, 21 December 2011 10:49 - Last Updated Wednesday, 21 December 2011 12:22

Revised and updated by the author, this book is a comprehensive guide to the art of nature, covering a wide range of subjects from the basics of drawing to more advanced techniques. It is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the art of nature, and is available in both print and digital formats.