Since 1985, Horan has been photographing the coastal southeast. His commercial work includes freelance assignment, fine art photography installation and stock photography for national advertising, book and magazine publication. 'In the Likeness of Everything' represents Horan's recent personal work captured while navigating the intracoastal waterways and Carolina coastal region and through all seasons.

The notable books where his images appear include Carolina Nature, A Photographer's View of the Natural World of the Carolinas, Lowcountry A-Z, South Carolina, A Compass American Guidebook (published by Fodor's) Clairmont Press & Holt, Rinehart Winston Textbooks, EXPOSURE (included among 100 of OUTSIDE magazines finest photographs over 15 years,) and National Geographic Books. Among the magazines where his work has appeared are Business Week, Cruising World, Fortune, McCall's, The New York Times Sunday Travel, Orion, OUTSIDE, Sail, and on the cover of Smithsonian.

Horan's nature photography is recognized throughout the Carolinas and Georgia in part by his iconic wildlife portraits, sky, land and water scenes showcased in Lowcountry Calendar published annually from 2001 to 2012 and winning national calendar awards each of the last eight years in print. Since 2004, Horan has extended his photo and natural history training to guiding fellow photographers and nature enthusiasts in his 19' Carolina Skiff touring remote destinations along the intra-coastal waterways and natural wildlife preserves in the southeast.
