Art League Gallery will host Eloquent Light, a collection of landscape photography by local artist Bill Bogle, Jr., this October. The exhibit includes familiar Lowcountry scenes of Spanish moss-draped live oaks and oceanfront dunes, the vibrant red rock formations of the American west, and solemn views along the New England coast. Bogle's passion and success lie in recording moments when the light reveals his subjects at their most meaningful.

"Eloquent Light is the illumination that captures nature's beauty, from the crisp morning air at sunrise, to reflections in water, to light dancing off hills, trails, mountain peaks or canyon walls," says Bogle. "It is the quiet in nature to present as I see it. The images I have chosen for this show express the beauty of the outdoors from the Lowcountry to national and state parks and locations throughout the United States."
