

Conroy Center Hosts 'Southern Writers on Writing' Panel

Written by Editor

Tuesday, 21 August 2018 11:39 - Last Updated Wednesday, 22 August 2018 05:52

The South is often misunderstood on the national stage, characterized by its struggles with poverty, education, and racism, yet the region has yielded an abundance of undeniably great literature. In the newly published anthology Southern Writers on Writing, editor Susan Cushman collects 26 writers from across the South whose work celebrates southern culture and shapes the landscape of contemporary southern literature. Contributors hail from Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and Florida.

On Sunday, September 9, from 3 – 4:30 pm, the Pat Conroy Literary Center's Visiting Writers Series will host a discussion of Southern Writers on Writing with Susan Cushman (below) in conversation with her contributing writers Cassandra King Conroy, Patti Callahan Henry, Harrison

Conroy Center Hosts 'Southern Writers on Writing' Panel

Written by Editor

Tuesday, 21 August 2018 11:39 - Last Updated Wednesday, 22 August 2018 05:52

~~Donna Williams, author of the novel 'The Girl on the Train', will be the guest speaker for the 'Southern Writers on Writing' panel at the Conroy Center. Williams is a member of the Conroy Center and will be speaking on the panel. The panel is co-edited by...~~