

“Anxiety-free” mammograms and more at Beaufort Memorial’s new Women’s Imaging Center

.

Time for your annual mammogram? No worries. Beaufort Memorial Hospital is turning the dreaded breast check-up into a relaxing, anxiety-free experience with its new Women’s Imaging Center.

Open as of Aug. 1 on the first floor of Beaufort Medical Plaza at 989 Ribaut Rd., the $1.3-million facility has been designed to appeal to women’s sensibilities with calming interior colors, soft lighting and comfortable furniture.

The Art of Healing

Written by Editor

Monday, 01 August 2011 14:55 - Last Updated Tuesday, 02 August 2011 17:16

“This is not your typical sterile waiting room with 10-year-old magazines,” said Breast Care Coordinator Ronda O’Connell, RN. “We put a lot of thought into the design to make the experience more enjoyable.”

Dailey & Associates, a Greenville firm specializing in health care designs, came up with the center’s healing arts concept. They created the same kind of interior for the Keyserling Cancer Center and hospital patient rooms.

“I call it healing with paint,” said Warren Verdin, one of the design professionals who worked on the project. “The idea was to create a spa-like environment. We used lavenders, grays and blues, furniture with soft textures and accent lighting.”

The Art of Healing

Written by Editor

Monday, 01 August 2011 14:55 - Last Updated Tuesday, 02 August 2011 17:16

The Art of Healing

Written by Editor

Monday, 01 August 2011 14:55 - Last Updated Tuesday, 02 August 2011 17:16

Why Prostate Cancer is a Serious Threat to Men's Health
The prostate is a small, walnut-sized gland located just below the bladder and in front of the rectum. It is responsible for producing and secreting prostatic secretions, which are essential for the health of the reproductive system. Prostate cancer is a common disease among men, and it can be life-threatening if not detected and treated early.

Read more Local Color
The state of North Carolina is a beautiful and diverse state with many opportunities for healthcare professionals. The state is home to many hospitals, clinics, and medical centers, and it offers a wide range of career opportunities for healthcare professionals. If you are interested in a career in healthcare, North Carolina is a great place to work.