Easter, which celebrates Jesus Christ's resurrection from the dead, is Christianity's most important holiday. Lately I've found myself reminiscing about the church that I grew up in, the churches that I've worked for, and Easter's past. Recollections of Easter dresses, little white gloves, Easter bonnets and palm frond crosses quickly come to mind.

Sunday morning flashbacks have my head happily filled with favorite hymns along with memories of what sometimes feels like a whole other lifetime. Many of you already know that I used to work downtown at First Presbyterian Church. I was the church secretary for almost fourteen years. I loved that job. I loved the church. I loved our minister. I loved my church family. More than ten years later, the happiest memories of my tenure at FPC always come flooding back to me at Eastertime. Back in the day, during Holy Week, a noontime service was held Monday through Friday in the church sanctuary. Each service was followed by a soup and sandwich luncheon in the fellowship hall that was hosted daily by one of the five different women's circles. It was my favorite week of the year. We all looked forward to Holy Week as a time of fellowship with our church family and dearest friends. Isn't it wonderful that happy memories only get better with the passage of time? And, isn't it interesting that dining with the people we love is often a part of the process? I hope that this week's recipes will create some new happy Easter memories for you. Thank you for letting me share them with you
