In recognition of their long-standing support of both the hospital and the arts, the Beaufort Memorial Hospital Foundation has announced that Bill and Martha Harvey will serve as honorary chairmen for its 13th annual Duke Symphony Orchestra concert fundraiser, scheduled for April 9.

Bill recently completed nine years on the BMH Foundation Board, the last two as chairman, during which time he saw first-hand the vital role of Beaufort Memorial in the health and well-being of the community, and also how very much the Foundation depends on community support.

The Duke Symphony Orchestra concert is one of the Foundation's most popular and successful fundraisers, having raised a total of over $265,000 to support BMH's Healing Arts Program at the Keyserling Cancer Center and other BMH facilities. It is also the 60-student strong Duke Symphony Orchestra's only performance off campus all year long.

Bill and Martha have played a key role in the success of the event, having hosted the Conductor's Reception at their home a few years ago and hardly missing a year in housing several of the students who volunteer their time and talent to travel all the way from Duke to perform.

"It's always a treat to have some of the students stay with us for the weekend," says Martha.
